Fortunately for you the direction that you were approaching from has a light glade of trees, where you quickly take cover while you carefully examine the people as they go about their (illegal) business. You notice that there's a large number of them with firearms. In fact, too many of them have firearms. While your suit's plating is thick enough to deflect most small firearms' attack, you don't think it can survive being fired on by twenty assault rifles.

"Damn...that's a lot of them," Ami whistles softly. "So," she looks at Balogh. "What's the plan, boss?" she asks.

Balogh looks at her for a bit and says, "Report back to HQ like Altug said. Then we wait for reinforcements." Ami clicks her tongue in annoyance at his suggestions before she turns to look at you. "Fine. Marks, what do you think?" she asks, turning to look at you instead. You frown a little and turn to look at the makeshift port below you. It's morning right now and the sun is rising, so any sort of direct approach would be extremely dangerous since the people can easily see you and open fire.

- You decide to look for a way to sneak down unnoticed and scout out the cove.
- You decide to tweak your suit's radio system so that you can use it as a directional mic.
- You'll try to look for a lone person to interrogate.
- You choose to be a little more creative and use your magic to create a scout for your group.
- You'll just throw all caution to the wind and open fire on these criminals.
